Hi friend,

In 2013, Metallica celebrated 'Kill Em All' 30th anniversary by playing 'em all. Including Anesthesia Pulling Teeth, for the first time since Cliff's passing. Not that it was forbidden before, it just didn't make sense to perform that improvised shred part by anyone except Cliff.

But for such an occasion, an exception was made. Robert had done the solo from the very beginning to the very end, putting his own spin on it, especially at the very end. Whether you like it or not that's a different matter, at least you should appreciate the courageous attempt. I personally dig it.

It's been over a decade and there's been no tabs made for this unique (and yet official Metallica's!) version of the bass solo. And even I was afraid of going for that, because a lot of parts were way too crazy or unclear from the effects (plus how do you even tab the fk ups?! :-)

But the time has finally come, and the tab's done, as well as the tab video. At least, I did my best. For now the tab is available only for you, my newsletters subscribers, and you can download it via the link below.

If anything, write to me via the website's contact form.

Cheers and enjoy playing. R.I.P. Cliff.
